

CELEBRATING THE LIFE AND LOVE OF

Kylie Ann Anderson

March 5, 1999 - February 20, 2026

Genuine and adventurous, Kylie Ann Anderson lived life to the fullest, filling each day with purpose, hard work, and determination. She was resilient, resourceful, ambitious, competitive, and courageous. Kylie possessed a quiet strength and steady conviction, facing challenges head-on with confidence and grace. She was an old soul. Fiercely independent, she made friends with ease and carried herself with both intelligence and dignity. She never shied away from trying something new, embracing each opportunity with boldness. From an early age, she knew exactly who she was and remained steadfast in her beliefs.

Kindhearted, sentimental, and generous, she was always the first to lend a hand. She was a true “yes” girl who embraced life wholeheartedly.

Kylie’s journey began on March 5, 1999, when she was born to Ty and Angi Anderson. As the oldest of four, she quickly embraced her role as big sister to Kayla, Kelsie, and Kellen, becoming someone they could always look up to. At just three years old, Kylie underwent hip surgery and spent an extended time in a cast. Doctors worried she might never be able to play sports, but in true Kylie fashion, she proved them wrong. With determination and heart, she refused to let anything hold her back. By age four, she was already playing soccer, and her boundless energy soon led her to try basketball, softball, track, and dance — embracing every opportunity with enthusiasm and grit.

As a child, Kylie delighted in snowy days, building snowmen and igloos while letting her imagination run free. She loved being outdoors — it was where she felt most at peace. In second grade, a teacher introduced her to finger weaving, sparking a lifelong passion for crochet. The creative process brought her comfort and a deep sense of accomplishment throughout her life.

Kylie attended Stephens Elementary School and Camp Ernst Middle School in Florence, Kentucky, where she thrived academically and socially.

By just eleven years old, she was already refereeing youth soccer games, showing confidence and leadership beyond her years. Fearless from the start, she also had a love for roller coasters and never turned down the thrill of a new adventure. With siblings close in age, there was never a dull moment in the Anderson household. Amid the lively chaos, Kylie valued her space and privacy, sometimes even locking her door to keep her siblings at bay. Always a jokester, she once went so far as to set up “spy lasers” to guard her room, declaring it strictly top secret.

Kylie graduated from Boone County High School in 2017. She kept a full schedule, balancing her work as a referee after school while also dedicating her time and talents to State Farm and Oakbrook Bakery throughout her high school years. She played soccer and basketball all four years, being recognized with a sportsmanship award and multiple post season awards. She held a deep respect for her coaches — Coach Hughes, Coach Fookes, Coach Josh, and many others— each of whom helped shape the woman she became and played an instrumental role in her life. A dedicated student and leader, she served as Captain for two years for both soccer and basketball and was a member of the National Honor Society. She was honored to be selected to both Homecoming Court and Prom Court, reflecting the respect and admiration of her classmates.

She went on to attend Thomas More University, where she earned her Bachelor's degree in Physics and Minor degree in Mathematics. As a student-athlete, she played basketball all four years and soccer her first two years, balancing academics and athletics with determination and grace. Kylie played goalie and was aggressive and fearless on the field. Kylie embodied true team spirit and inspired her teammates through her unwavering dedication, determination, and drive.

Always mindful of her goals, Kylie loved to save and embraced every opportunity to earn a little extra along the way. Whether she was setting up chemistry labs or dog-sitting for friends and family, she worked tirelessly, steadily building toward the bigger picture she envisioned for her life.

Kylie cherished time with her family. With her grandparents living just down the street, they were a steady and loving presence in her everyday life. She shared an especially close bond with her Papaw — the two were inseparable most days. Whether they were fishing, unwinding at Mimi and Papaw's cabin, or tending the garden side by side, their time together was sacred — moments they both deeply treasured.

Kylie was a rule follower, always striving to do what was right. She had a truly kind heart that naturally brought people together and was consistently present for those in her life. She was the first to celebrate a friend's accomplishments and to show up for the meaningful moments in her family's lives. Kylie was a talented cook, a grill master who also loved to bake. She had a particular fondness for a perfectly cooked steak, and everyone eagerly anticipated her famous pecan pie. Her all-time favorite was her mom's homemade meatloaf.

After college, Kylie landed a job working for Reynolds & Reynolds as an Implementation Lead. She traveled extensively for work, which in turn strengthened her relationships with her colleagues, who eventually became like family. People were naturally drawn to Kylie. She radiated positivity and became a cherished friend to countless groups throughout her life. Whether someone met her in high school or later through work, Kylie treasured every friendship, making those around her feel genuinely included, valued, and unconditionally loved.

Kylie shared a deep and special bond with her mom. She often looked to her for advice, encouragement, or simply a soft place to land. She respected her wisdom, and her mom was her rock in an often overwhelming world. Kylie knew she could always rely on her — a gift of love and trust that shaped her life. Their relationship was built on late-night talks, shared laughter, quiet understanding, and unwavering support. Through every season of her life, her mom stood beside her, offering strength when Kylie needed it most.

She also shared a deep and special bond with her dad. In her younger years, he coached her in basketball and softball, cheering her on and helping shape her love for the game.

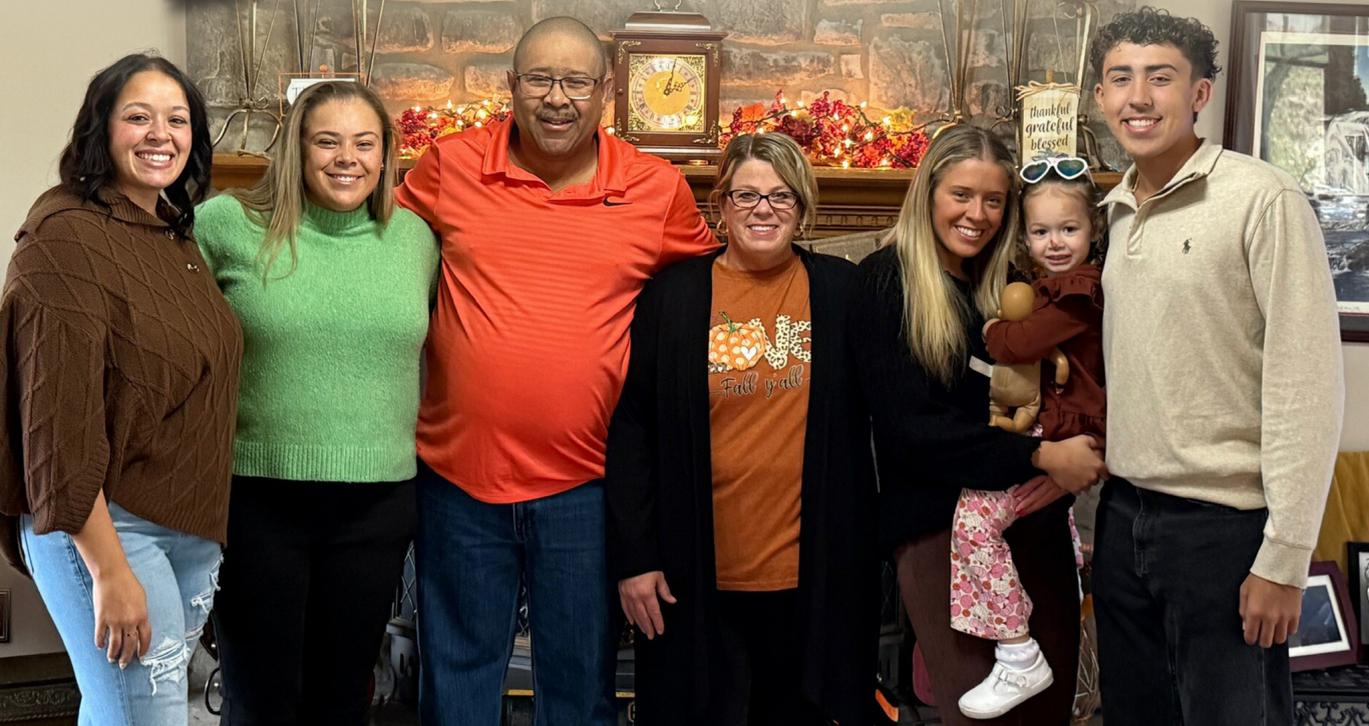

She worked alongside him on weekends cutting grass, learning the value of hard work and responsibility. After purchasing her first home, they grew even closer, spending time together tackling projects around the house — moments that became some of their most meaningful memories.

Kylie was ambitious, with a long list of goals, and one she was especially proud of was owning her own home. After a work week filled with travel, she cherished coming back to a place she had worked so hard to achieve — a true space of her own. When faced with a home project she wasn't sure how to tackle, Kylie would set her mind to it and see it through. A true go-getter, whatever she set her sights on, she carefully planned and pursued with determination until she accomplished it.

Suddenly, Kylie passed away into the hands of God on Friday, February 20, 2026, to be greeted by those who have gone before her. She will be deeply missed, but her light will continue to shine through the lives of her family and all those she touched along the way.
